This Thanksgiving, Find Your Mayflower Ancestors at OneGreatFamily.com

November 23, 2009, Springville UT – Does your family tree include any of the 102 passengers who braved stormy seas aboard the Mayflower? Did your ancestors celebrate the first Thanksgiving dinner with the Pilgrims and Native Americans? At OneGreatFamily.com, you can enter your family genealogy and see if it connects to any of the Mayflower passengers.

OneGreatFamily.com hosts a gigantic, interconnected family tree with more than 200 million names that have been submitted by genealogy enthusiasts in their own family trees. You can potentially uncover and connect information about multiple generations to your own tree.

To Uncover Mayflower Connections:

- Join OneGreatFamily.com and begin entering your own family tree (to increase your odds of finding a connection, try to enter at least 18 names).
- OneGreatFamily's search engine makes connections to any other branches of your family tree that are already at the site (this may take a while – we plow through more than 18 TRILLION comparisons of family facts and relationships every week as new names are added).
- Go to the Mayflower Ancestors page to see the family trees of passengers, read an interesting history of the ship and its passengers, and find links to related web sites.
- To see if you're related to a certain passenger, log into OneGreatFamily.com and click the Family Dashboard tab. Scroll to the Relationship Calculator; choose How is this person [select yourself] Related to this person [select Search by Name and enter the name of the passenger]. The database will churn through hundreds of millions of names and outline the relationship (if it exists).
